

9 Belgrave Crescent Lane, Edinburgh

For Private Clients

The Clients owned a two storey mews house with main living accommodation at first floor level and a garage and store on the floor below. They wanted to create additional bedroom space, but initial investigation of expanding into the roof space suggested it would be difficult to create the space required there.

Instead it was decided to convert the garage and store to form a new master bedroom, dressing area, ensuite shower room and utility room, accessed off a landing to the stone spiral stair.

Louvred sliding screens formed in cedar give privacy to the master bedroom from the immediate street frontage and at the same time present an exterior appearance echoes the large garage doors that are predominant features of the mews.

Structural Engineer: Wren & Bell

ARCADE
ARCHITECTS
www.arcadearchitects.com