

Quay House, Leith

For Realise Ltd

Realise are one of Scotland's major providers of e-business solutions. As well as accommodating their sophisticated technical and workspace requirements, Realise were looking for exciting front of house spaces for their clients, to provide accommodation for reception, meetings and presentations.

The project is an interior fit-out within the shell of Grade A Listed former dockside warehouses which have their original timber columns and roof structure expressed internally.

The principal design move is to create a free form presentation room, designed for data projection, which occupies the center of the reception area. Cellular offices and meeting rooms arranged around the perimeter have glazed partitions which bring daylight into the reception and waiting areas.
